LASCAR CREW EXCORIATED BY WITNESSES AT EGYPT QUIZ

Cowardly Sailors Blamed For Loss Of Life

VICTIMS TESTIFY

Had 25 Minutes For Rescue Work, Court Told

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 27.—At the resumption of the inquiry into the loss of the Egypt, Mr. Halliday, the supernumerary third officer, continuing his evidence, testified that after the collision he did not see the native headman who transmitted his orders to the Indian seamen.

Mr. White, the second engineer, said that he ordered a large number of natives out of the boats. He ordered them to help with the other boats.

One boat filled with people, which he was helping to launch went down with the ship. He also went down but rose and found an oar, to which he hung on for two hours.

One watertight door of the stoke hold would never close.

Some of the natives would not do their duty but two did not attempt to get away.

They stood on deck and sank with the ship.

Mr. Hamilton, the third engineer, testified that his boatload of 29 natives refused to row near the liner to take off the people and backed away.

The Solicitor-General, Mr. Leslie Scott, read affidavits by some of the passengers. The first testified that there was much panic among the native crew and only one case of panic among the passengers, adding that no lives would have been lost if the Egypt had carried a white crew.

A pathetic affidavit by another passenger, whose wife and two young daughters were drowned, said that the natives were seized with panic. The passengers, officers and white crew were calm.

"The lascars could have saved my little children because the sea was calm. At least 25 minutes elapsed between the collision and the sinking of the ship." One little girl repeatedly called to the lascars for help. They did not take the slightest notice.

"Passing, a lascar tried to tear the lifejacket off my wife's back."

Another passenger referred to the heroism of a hun, Sister Rhoda, who did much to calm and inspire the passengers. She was praying when the ship turned turtle.

NEW MILITARY ALIGNMENT IN KWANGSI, REPORT

Internal Rivalries Lead To Re-Grouping In South

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 28.—Kwangsi telegrams report a fresh grouping of militarists. Internal rivalry since the Kwangtung disturbances has allowed Kwangsi to think and act for itself. General Li Sheng-to controls the south-western districts with his base at Nanning, the former Tuchun's seat. General Liang Hwa-tung controls the south-east with his base a Kweiling, the Civil Governor's seat, while Generals Chang Chi-shou and Liu Shing-tuang who possess small armies, are acting independently. Meanwhile the Central Government's nominee to the Civil-Governorship, Mr. Chang Chi-kuang has not yet been able to secure a controlling footing.

The combined forces of Generals Li Sheng-to and Liang Hwa-tung recently attacked General Chang Chi-shou at Liuchowfu but the result is not yet known. It is reported that General Liang Hwa-tung is communicating with General Tung Hwa-ing who is at Shanghai and it is believed that the latter will gain considerable support if he returned but chaos in Kwangsi is reported to be so great that it is impossible to guess what would be the outcome.

Mr. Charles Hannigs, lessee of the hotel, testified that Sposito was seated at a table in the cafe. When he approached, Sposito arose and demanded his wages, pounding on the table. Beneath the table he had an axe, with which he is alleged to have intended to destroy the piano if his wages were not paid. Only the week before, he had given Spocito $100 as a bonus, and his wages would have been paid in full had he remained in the employ of the hotel.

Sposito, in his own defense said that he did not threaten anyone but had merely gone to collect his wages.

RAIL BUREAU'S RETRENCHMENT PLAN TO SAVE SIXTY MILLION

Kao En-hung Works Out Reorganisation Scheme

TAXES REMOVED

Short Term Loans To Be Secured By Revenues

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 28.—Reuter's Agency has received from the Chiaotungpu the following copy of "The Reorganisation and Construction Plan of the Ministry of Communications."

The Chiaotungpu is making earnest effort at retrenchment and reorganisation of the various departments. As a result of politics the former Ministers of the Chiaotungpu were in debt to upwards of $60,000,000 to domestic and foreign creditors. Mr. Kao Eng-hung, therefore, intends to avoid politics and his plans center on the question of how to raise the revenue to pay off the Ministry's huge indebtedness. Reduction in the personnel has been effected and will save upwards of $3,000,000 yearly while the reduction in the railways staffs will save a further $15,000,000.

Instead of continuing to levy the goods tax the collection of which necessitates the establishment of a separate organ, the Cabinet has sanctioned the abolition of this tax, and proportionately increasing the freight charges on the different lines. This is estimated to give an increase of $10,000,000. As the postal charges are also comparatively low, it is proposed to levy an additional one cent on all letters passing the Chinese Post Office, which is expected to yield $500,000 yearly. The Department of Telegraphs will be reorganised and the charges for messages in foreign languages will be readjusted, which is expected to realise $2,500,000 yearly.

The additional charges are not expected to inflict hardships. The increased revenues will serve as a sinking fund for the redemption of outstanding obligations. Short term domestic loans will be secured on the increased railway freight charges amounting to $60,000,000 and on the additional telegraph charges amounting to $10,000,000. It is anticipated that domestic and foreign obligations to upwards of $60,000,000, the principal and interest of which are falling due in 1922, will be redeemed in one instalment. This will reduce the monthly interest on the various loans by $2,500,000 monthly or an aggregate reduction of $30,000,000 yearly.

With regard to completing the uncompleted railways, new plans are contemplated. For example, the Canton-Hankow Railway when completed will bring in $40,000,000 additional revenue. Since the suspension of operations in 1915 the property has depreciated $35,000,000. The gap between the two sections is not more than 270 miles. It is anticipated that the whole line will be completed two years after construction is resumed. This gap will require an outlay of $40,000,000 but according to the terms of the original contract a fresh agreement is not necessary for a supplementary loan. The completion of the Lunghai Railway will increase the yearly revenue by $30,000,000. The western section has been constructed as far as Shenchow and the eastern section beyond Sutsien. Since the diversion of $20,000,00 of the Lunghai funds in 1916 for the service of President Yuan Shikai, Monarchial ambitions have interrupted the construction program of this line, which has suffered an annual loss of $5,000,000 in the depreciation of property and in interest. The sum required to complete the whole line is estimated at $20,000,000. The completion of the Shanghai-Hangchow-Ningpo Railway and the construction of the Chientang River bridge will increase the annual revenue by $5,000,000. This line was nationalised in 1914 after

KIANGSU TUCHUN PEEVED AT NEW CUSTOMS CHIEF

Chi Opposes Appointment Of Chen Jui-chang To Succeed Yao Wen-fu

Tuchun Chi Shih-yuan of Kiangsu has openly defied the appointment of Mr. Chen Jui-chang as Superintendent of Customs at Shanghai. In a telegram to the Central Government yesterday, he pointed out that the Chinese Customs Superintendent at Shanghai, Mr. Yao Wen-fu is quite competent and should not be replaced by a man who knows nothing about customs.

Mr. Chen was custodian of the Presidential Seals during Hsu Shih-chang's regime. It was because no previous consent was secured by the Central Government from Tuchun Chi for Chen's appointment that the Kiangsu Military Governor has been persistently opposing him.

The new superintendent is in Shanghai, staying in one of the Chinese lodging houses. He asks that he be allowed to return to Peking, but the Ministry of Finance has instructed him to remain in Shanghai pending negotiations with Tuchun Chi.

Pawnbroker Charged With Taking Stolen Goods, Fined $30

Related to the case of Mary Lopez, a Japanese girl being held by the Japanese authorities on charges of extensive jewelry thefts, the case of a Chinese pawnbroker was heard yesterday in the Mixed Court by Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Lee and when it was shown that the pawnbroker had neglected to apprize the police that he had received from the girl a watch, described in a police circular that had been sent out, he was convicted of having received stolen property and was fined $30.

Among the victims of the Japanese girl were the firms of Boyes, Bassett and Co., from whose premises the girl removed watches valued at about $2,000, and Hirsbrunner's. It was a watch taken from the place last named that had been pawned with the pawnbroker whose case was heard yesterday. After the report of the thefts and the arrest of the girl the police circularised all pawnshops giving a full description of the stolen jewelry, but the pawnbroker who was tried yesterday failed to make a report of the watch he had received.

Mr. Lemiere, who appeared for the accused, said that when the girl had appeared at the pawnbroker's establishment she was well dressed and gave no reason for his client to be suspicious. He said the failure to notify the police about the watch after its description had been received was a regrettable oversight.

Most of the jewelry that was stolen by the girl has been recovered but no date for the hearing of her case in the Japanese consular court has yet been set.

STEPS UNDER WAY TO BRING PEACE IN BIG U. S. STRIKES

COALPARLEY, TOO

Lewis Predicts Opening Of Mines Shortly

(Reuter's Service)

Mr. Lewis, the leader of the striking coalminers, predicts that an inter-State joint conference will be arranged in a few days' time to permit the resumption of mining.

Washington, July 28.—Tentative proposals for the settlement of the railway strike have been drawn up as a series of conferences between President Harding and the Labor leaders.

It is understood that the plan, the details of which are withheld, will be submitted to the railroad executives.

TOKIO TO OPEN NEGOTIATIONS ON POST OFFICES

Commission To Proceed To Peking Shortly

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, July 26.—With regard to the withdrawal of foreign post-offices in China, the authorities concerned today stated in the main as follows:

Inspite of the fact that the withdrawal of Japanese post-offices in China means a great loss to Japanese Government, having a desire to see the post-office business of China improved, organised a preparatory commission immediately after the termination of the Washington Conference with a view to accelerating the withdrawal of Japanese post-offices in China.

The Foreign Office of Japan thus on June 24 gave instructions to Mr. Obata, Japanese Minister to Peking, to approach and propose to the Chinese Government to the effect that Japan had definitely decided to withdraw her post-offices by January 1, 1923, in conformity with the decision reached at the Washington Conference and that as the postal relations between Japan and China are so complicated and quantities of mails between the two countries are by far larger than those between China and any one foreign country, necessary arrangements be made between the authorities concerned of the two countries in order to alleviate the inconvenience arising from the withdrawal of Japanese post-offices.

Now that the Chinese Government has appreciated the above proposal, Japan has conclused to have Mr. Obata open negotiations with the Chinese Government and it is expected that Japanese commissioners and attendants will proceed to Peking before long.

Sir Philip Gibbs Blames All Sides In Ireland

Sees Unwise Moral Pressure On British In Over O. Treaty

BY SIR PHILIP GIBBS

London, June 10.—The condition of affairs in Ireland, which is disgraceful in the eyes of all civilised peoples, causes increasing agitation in the public opinion of England. Even the warmest friends of the Irish people frankly confess despair over that unhappy country and have lost all patience with both sides. It is especially hard upon those who advocated peace and conciliation at a time when Sinn Fein was fighting its guerilla warfare with British troops and who brought unwise moral pressure upon the British Government to offer that treaty which history will surely judge as a generous and magnanimous measure for the sake of liberty. Their liberal sentiments are now made a mockery by those who regarded all such idealism as weakness and treachery to imperial interests.

By the folly of fanatics, rejecting the spirit of liberty and good will for a theoretical formula, by the murderous instincts of young gunmen who play the game of death as English boys play cricket, the treaty is jeopardized and England is again faced with the necessity of armed intervention. The forces and personalities in England believing in the old fashioned conquest of Ireland by Britain's armed might, as they believe in holding India, Egypt and all possessions not by moral influence, but by the good old mailed fist, were for some time compelled to lie low, to cool their passion by the victory of peace methods. They are now in the open again, proclaiming the urgent need of strong measures by which they mean full, frank war, with all the available strength of Britain to defend Ulster from Republican raids and to restore the union of southern Ireland as it stood before the treaty.

INTO HANDS OF FOES

Although I do not agree with this policy all I can say is that De Valera and his fellow fanatics have asked for it. Their stupidity or intolerance, their mean nagging, their venomous spirit and their complacency with horrible crime have played straight into the hands of that English group which advocates reconquest. Collins and those who signed the treaty, by surrendering even in appearance to the bullies of the De Valera crowd, have made it hard for the British Government to resist the militarists inside and outside their own ranks.

There is no doubt that Ulster must be defended at all costs. We are pledged to that and must keep that pledge unless we lose our honor. But there are powers working secretly as well as openly to make Ulster a grappling hook which will drag England into a war of reconquest in southern Ireland. Those Ulster loyalists—dear, innocent lambs as they make themselves out to be—are shouting for rescue from their English brothers against the murderous campaign of Sinn Fein gunmen, and already millions of simple hearts in England are stirred to sympathetic indignation because loyal Ulster is threatened with invasion from the Irish republicans, because Sinn Fein gunmen are busy in Belfast.

It is easy to see how this loyalty to those who call themselves our friends is a good battle cry for Englishmen in high places as well as for Ulster leaders who wish to stamp out the treaty of peace with the Irish Catholics. The dividing line between aggression and defense is always thin. Attack is sometimes the best means of defense. Ulster will, therefore, have no difficulty in persuading England that she merely wishes to defend her frontier, and already British troops rushed to their rescue have been plunged into border warfare. It is impossible to say where that will stop.

ULSTER ALSO TO BLAME

For me it is also impossible to acquit Ulster of blame. I cannot regard Ulstermen as injured innocents, having had a painful experience before the war of their intolerance and brutality. I have seen gangs of them kick to death a single helpless Catholic. I have stood under the shelter of houses in Donegal street when they have collected piles of kidney stones and hurled them at any man they suspected as an inhabitant of a Catholic quarter. I have seen their organised eviction of Catholic workingmen, which they have recently repeated so that there is a threatened invasion from Irish republicans of 20,000 Catholics who have been cleared out of Ulster under threats of death.

Catholic gunmen in Ulster have been busy and murderous but Ulster gunmen haven't been idle, and up to the last day of May this competition in assassination since the peace treaty results in seventy-three Catholics killed as against twenty-nine Protestants, 140 Catholics wounded as against ninety Protestants. It is a religious and racial vendetta on both sides which tempts one to despair of human progress in that island of tragedy.

The most formidable advocate of British intervention by repeal of the peace treaty and martial law throughout Ireland is Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson, military adviser for Ulster, British Member of Parliament. I met him several times during the war and had an opportunity of studying his character. At that time he was chief liaison officer between the French and British general staffs. The French officers admired him on this side of idolatry and regarded him as a typical English soldier of the most gallant type. He is, however, neither English nor typical of England. An immensely tall Irishman, with legs like a stork, he is pure Celt, with all the humor, passion and subtlety of his race.

He played up to the French, flattered their vanity, made them roar with laughter at racy stories and whimsical jokes. Only for a brief time did he take command of British troops in the field, and then was not a brilliant success. But his personality won the admiration of his men, and I remember a speech he made to a large body of battalion officers whom he addressed not with any formality but in the language of the trenches. One sentence he spoke made them rock with laughter. "We old devils," he said "aren't any damn good in a war like this. It is up to you young blighters."

WILSON OUT FOR BLOOD

With charming manners and the appearance of Don Quixote, Wilson is out for blood in Ireland. It is his sincere belief that there is only one good policy for the Irish rebels, and that is to kill them until they surrender and sing "God Save the King." He is for Ulster through thick and thin, body and soul; all his military knowledge is at their command.

His chief opponent in this policy is Winston Churchill, who is directing negotiations between the British Government and all Irish parties in an earnest endeavor to find some solution for peace with honor. Churchill has an ancient grudge against Ulster which must sometimes rankle in his memory, though he doesn't allow it to affect his course of action, which is to be loyal to our pledge to Ulster.

Before the war, when Ulster was arming to resist the home rule act passed by the King and Parliament, Churchill accepted an invitation to speak on the edge of the Protestant and Catholic quarters. Belfast Orangemen vowed they would not let him speak, threatened him with death if he dared come. He came. I saw his arrival at the station; it was one of the bravest acts of his life. He was surrounded by mobs of young Orangemen in an ugly temper armed with revolvers. As he came out they raised a noise of booing and hooting. Churchill's jaw stiffened; he had a scowl on his face as he stared into the eyes of his enemies. He quelled them by his look, and though afterward they tried to overturn his carriage the police beat them off, while he sat there very calmly. He told me he had a gun in his pocket that day and would have shot like a dog the first man who laid hand on him.

He is now as much out for peace as Wilson is for war. With him, strangely enough, in that policy of peaceful persuasions is Birkenhead, now Lord Chancellor of England, who once as F. E. Smith was Carson's right hand man and more responsible for stirring up religious bigotry and racial passion in Ulster than any man alive except Carson himself. As a quiet power behind the scenes is Bonar Law—Ulster in sympathy but an advocate of the peace treaty.

British public opinion desires with passionate sincerity to exhaust its patience completely before supporting any campaign in Ireland of which the innocent victims would be Irish civilians, Irish women and children and young British soldiers who have no use for the gunmen of either side.

Chang Dines Japanese At Mukden, Tells Plans For Three Provinces

Mukden, July 26.—In the course of a banquet, to which Chang Tso-lin recently invited some fifty leading Japanese officials and private persons, including journalists, the Manchurian "war-lord," who has of late completed the formation of the "General Headquarters of Peace of the Three Eastern Provinces," made a speech, the gist of which is as follows:

"I have invited you to dinner this evening because I wish on the one hand to define the present state of affairs in the Three Eastern Provinces and prevent misunderstandings between China and Japan, and on the other to express my gratitude to you for the good-will which you have for many years past shown to the Three Eastern Provinces.

"Since my assumption five years ago of the Inspector Generalship of these provinces, I feel assured I have done great services to all parties concerned. The Washington Conference has brought about considerable changes in the world, seriously affecting the Three Eastern Provinces. What China most fears is that she may be doomed to ruin financially, in view of the fact that some ambitious Powers, taking advantage of the financial difficulties, in which China is at present finding herself, are contemplating an expansion of their own sphere of influence in this country.

"Take for instance the Customs dues as well as the Salt Gabelle. These should not be put under China's control at this juncture it would almost be impossible to find another opportunity to do so. When, therefore, the Liang Shih-yi Cabinet was brought into existence last year, I expressed approval of the Cabinet, and intended to put the plan above mentioned in force. But unfortunately, the Fengtien-Chihli war broke out, rendering my plan null and void. During the war, Japan strictly maintained a neutral attitude. Though some Japanese accuse me of purposely obstructing the negotiations between Japan and China on pending questions, I have hitherto endeavored to render as much assistance as possible to any matters which I considered beneficial to the peoples of the two countries. It will be remembered that since the termination of the Great War, the situation in the Three Eastern Provinces has become more than ever complicated so far as international relations are concerned. For instance, vital questions, relating to the harbor works of the Hulutao, the Chinese Eastern Railway and Bolshevism are all bothersome questions. I have nothing more to do with the civil administration in Manchuria, as I have already transferred to the new Civil Governor the functions of the Civil Governor of Fengtien.

"In addition, both Kirin and Heilungkiang provinces having decided to put in force the separate administration of military and civil affairs in the said provinces, it naturally follows that the civil administration in each province of Manchuria should be dependent upon the views and decisions of their respective Provincial Assemblies. Though I do not administer civil affairs personally, the internal administration of the Three Eastern Provinces will surely be carried on smoothly, and Manchuria, as you know, has ample finances without any fear of internal troubles. It is also expected that the reform of military administration will be carried out in no distant date. I am ready to sacrifice my own private wealth, if it is for the benefit of the Three Eastern Provinces, but I have no intention whatever of interfering in the political affairs of the Central Government, always maintaining a friendly attitude, as I have a firm resolution to devote myself to the peace and order in Manchuria.

No woman who has any sense of beauty will deny that superfluous hair is one of the greatest drawbacks to good looks.

Realising this, women of all times have put themselves to any expense, and have endured considerable pain and discomfort in order to rid themselves of this great disfigurement.

Nowadays electrolysis is a prevalent "cure" for this evil, but in reality this process involves a great deal of unnecessary expense, waste of time and pain.

The simplest quickest, and most effective treatment can easily be carried out by any sufferer, in the privacy of her home. This is the recipe:

Procure about 1 oz. powdered pheminol from your chemist; mix a sufficient quantity with a few drops of water into a stiff paste. Apply this carefully and thoroughly to the hair you wish to remove, and allow the paste to dry. In a few minutes it can be gently scraped away. The skin is left absolutely free from hair, and should then be carefully washed in warm water, and if desired, lightly dusted with a little talcum powder. (Advt.)

Machine Invented To Mince Microbes

London, July 5.—An extraordinary machine for mincing microbes has been erected in the Research Laboratories of St. Paul's Hospital, London.

Microbes which are invisible to the sight are cut into bits in the microbe mincing machine. The machine has two discs, one of which is stationary, while the other rotates. The stationary disc has seventy tiny steel knives and the rotating disc eighty cutting edges. The microbes, suspended in an alkaline liquid, are forced against these cutting edges at a speed of sixty miles an hour.

The machine is used in the making of anti-toxins.

Serbian Prince Accused Of Poison Pen

Prince George of Serbia

PRINCE George of Serbia, son of the late King Peter and elder brother of King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia, has been accused by M. Pachitch, Jugo-Slavian Premier, of writing menacing letters. The Premier asked the French Government to restrain him, as he has been living in Paris for years, having renounced his rights to the throne in 1909. One view is that he is a member of the Serbian "Black Hand," which is credited with conspiring against the "White Hand," which favors King Alexander.

World Markets Are Being Flooded With Merchandise Manufactured In Germany

Washington, June 15.—An industrially awakened Germany is reaching out into the marts of the world for trade with a persistency and zealousness which already is scattering familiar "Made in Germany" articles broadcast throughout the world.

Even German straw hats are being worn by Americans this Summer, and Senator Calder (R.), of New York, a member of the Senate Finance Committee, "sported" one recently which, he said, had retailed in a Brooklyn shop for less than a dollar.

German exporters are understood to have been advised officially the new American tariff law will become operative not later than September 1, but the possible shipments from Germany to the United States should be hastened in anticipation of its earlier enactment.

And "Made in Germany" goods are reported to be flooding the American market as a result of this semi-official "tip" to their German makers.

The United States, Russia and South America appear to be the favorite fields for the German exporter and "drummer."

There is to be an exclusively German industrial exposition held at Moscow in July which is intended to display before the Russian people the desirability of things "Made in Germany." The Soviet Government is reported to be already admitting the exhibits, consisting largely of agricultural and transportation displays, free of duty, and to be giving the Germans back of the enterprise every encouragement in carrying out their invasion of the Russian market.

GERMANS SEND SAMPLES

Owing to the difficulties of exchange few German firms are expected to participate in the exposition to be held at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, this Fall, but a German steamship, bearing "samples" of "Made in Germany" goods and a staff of trained German salesmen, will visit Rio during the "fair" and proceed subsequently to other South American ports.

German foreign trade control is being systematically pushed under the paternal supervision of the German Government itself with characteristic German foresight, precision and patience, according to semi-official advices received by members of both the Senate Foreign Relations and Finance committees recently.

One prominent Republican Senator was informed authoritatively that considerable misconception exists in regard to the workings of the present German import and export policy, which is said to be closely interrelated with all German economic measures.

The German Government has given exclusive control of all foreign trade into the hands of what are described as all-powerful and all-directing German import and export boards.

These boards possess powers which are virtually autocratic, but althought they are being opposed by some they are reported to be highly efficient in their protection of German business and economic interests.

They have the authority to lay down absolute trade prohibitions at will, and the ease and celerity with which this can be done or undone with respect to any particular commodity for the protection of any special industry, in whole or part, is described as creating a system much more effective than the method of tariff wall which is so often prevalent in this country.

This new German system is said to be not unlike that which the McCumber tariff bill would establish by empowering the President to lower or raise tariff rates after consulting with the Federal Tariff Commission and similar Government agencies, except the German import and export boards are not composed of or conducted by German Government officials or employes.

They are controlled and managed instead by the direct representatives of the various important industries involved, and every special subdivision of an industry has its own highly specialised and technically informed board.

The boards are composed of experts from the different industries, and they are kept in constant and intimate touch with every passing change in the condition of each and every industry, or of any special part of it.

Legal action against them is not possible, as it would be against the Executive and his advisers under the McCumber tariff plan, for the boards are held to be "decentralised" and of a semi-private character.

Before any import or export transaction can take place in Germany a permit must first be obtained from the proper board, which has the power to pass finally upon the prices and terms, as well as upon all other conditions and circumstances surrounding the transaction.

Permits are invariably refused when the manufacturers concerned see no direct benefit to themselves in the transaction.

German opponents of these boards declare their purpose is to keep prices artifically high, and inflated profits are used to subsidise the German export trade in a manner which the Versailles Treaty prohibits to the German Government itself.

It is also pointed out these boards possess the power to cancel contracts between Germans and foreigners, even when both parties are desirous of executing the terms of the contract, and such contracts are annulled if they are merely held by the boards to be harmful to the particular German industry affected by the contract.

The system is reported to be meeting with powerful opposition within Germany itself. The German textile industry has formed an organisation to combat the control of the boards, and other industries are said to be contemplating similar action.

So far, however, there is not the slightest indication the German Government intends to take any steps toward the abolishment of the boards, against which charges are being made that they are able to obtain valuable trade secrets from foreign exporters for the benefit of German competitors by requiring, when they think it necessary, a full disclosure of all technical details as a first condition for obtaining import permits.

The boards are also accused of being used to punish the exporters of nations when the acts of their Governments are considered prejudicial to German interests by denying an import permit to the national of one country while granting it to the national of another country.

The information regarding the farreaching activities of the boards which has reached Senators lately has convinced them the boards are being employed by the German Government itself as a means of camouflaged control and influence for the furtherance of German political and economic aims and purposes.

LASKER, SHIPPING CHIEF, TRYING TO KEEP OCEAN WET

Having Hard Fight To Maintain Liquor On Liners

Washington, June 15.—Albert D. Lasker, that able and likeable shipping board chairman, seems now to have gone Moses one better.

Moses made the Red sea dry. Albert seems to have succeeded in making the American North Atlantic wet. In fact, on second thought, it might be securely said that Albert D. Lasker is the greatest, wettest seamen since Noah.

And his bucko mate, Elmer Schlesinger, who is in chief charge of all the ship's stores of legal learning, believes the United States shipping board has an absolute right to be a permanent boating oasis in the ocean from the great American desert and that not even congress can abrogate that cheering prospect for our onward-bound caravan of thirsting American travelers.

According to Schlesinger, the constitution intervenes. The gentlemen who drew up the dry amendment used the word "territory" instead of the word "place" in defining the geographical operation of their idea.

Thus they left a loophole through which eventually an American merchant marine might emerge to compete with Britannia for the carrying trade of the world.

A territory is not a ship. A ship is not a territory. Among numerous attempted proofs of that contention, Schlesinger cites that the supreme court has held that when a seaman is performing labor on a ship in an American port he cannot be said to be doing it "in this country."

But what about the Panama canal zone? Is not the Panama canal zone quite clearly territory? I therefore suggest to all the conscientious drys in congress—and in order to get a majority I suggest it also to the hypocritical and grandstanding drys—that it is outrageous that a foreign ship should sail through American canal territory with intoxicating liquors.

The supreme court has already held that foreign intoxicating liquors cannot be carried through American ships dry shall travel abroad thereafter on American ships only.

If Pharon Warmer's efforts should fail it is possible that a prohibition movement which began in order to destroy the criminal consequences of the local corner saloon might end by destroying the utterly non-criminal passenger transport ships of the new American merchant marine.

Titled English Bride Has Green Bridal

LADY Jean Capell, daughter of Adele, Countess of Essex and granddaughter of the late Beach Grant, of New York, defied all traditions when she was married to Osbert Peake, member of a prominent Yorkshire family, in St. Margaret's Chapel, Westminster, London. All of her eleven bridesmaids and five pages were attired in green.

United States territory for further shipment abroad. Therefore a ship carrying ale from Liverpool to Hongkong through the Panama canal must now hereafter go around the southern end of South America.

On this point, however, I have interviewed Pharon Warmer, the well known political prophet.

Pharon Warmer is optimistic. He is drafting a bill which he presently will cause to be introduced into congress.

This bill provides against the possibility of any act by congress withdrawing subsidy payments from American ships carrying liquors.

Pharon Warmer's bill also provides for any measure which makes

Prohibition Fight Started In Japan

Tokio, June 15.—Japan may be the first country to follow the United States into the age of corn whiskey and home brew. It won't be very soon, but the movement to deprive the rickisha man and the geisha of their "sake" and those who have acquired Western culture of their beer and Scotch whiskey has started.

The W. C. T. U. and other organisations, similar to those which consider a cocktail a crime in America, are interested. They have been doing prohibition work for years, but it was not until recently that the campaign started with force. Encouragement by the passage of the Minor Prohibition law by the Diet is responsible for the activity, and now one sees groups of girls and women with an occasional man on prominent street corners handing to passers-by circulars telling of the evils of drink.

A little and good

THERE is a distinguishing feature in the business of the house of HAIG & HAIG. Most Distillers have various brands of varying qualities. HAIG & HAIG have one brand only, and they claim (and the public acclaim) that it is the finest that goes from Scotland.

It is a regrettable fact that all retailers have not the same high standard of commercial honesty, and it is known that cheaper brands are sometimes passed on to the public under the label of houses of high repute.

When you see a genuine bottle of HAIG & HAIG Five Stars Scots Whisky it will be the same fine quality in London, in Lucknow, or in Labrador; in the Langham Hotel, in the G.O.H. at Colombo, and in the best Clubs in Cape Town.

Haig & Haig Five Stars Scots Whisky

A second quality Haig & Haig could not be filled into a Haig & Haig bottle because there isn't a second quality.

Haig & Haig is also known easily by the fact that you pay a little extra for it.

Say HAIG & HAIG or you may get a cheaper brand substituted.

NANCHANG FEARS FOREIGNERS FACE GRAVE DANGERS

Much Looting Reported Along The Kan River

(China Press Correspondence)

Hankow, July 24.—Much concern is being felt at Nanchang regarding the lack of protection for foreign interests in Kiangsi in the event of hostilities spreading into the heart of Kiangsi. The Nanchang Commander has been warned by consular representatives of the necessity of devising adequate means to see that foreigners are well protected. The Roman Catholic mission stations in the areas occupied by southern forces and those out of jurisdiction of either party have had much trouble with the looting soldiery whose operations are beyond the restraint of authorities.

There has been much looting along the Kan River, Methodist mission families experiencing difficulties which no Kiangsi people have encountered during the past few decades. According to a foreign representative of the American Methodist Episcopal Church, during the sacking of Siakiang and Sinkan the lives of many Chinese Christians were threatened by soldiers who demanded money.

Fortunately, only a few outrages and assaults on women and children are reported, but many people are held up for ransom at daylight, and soldiers are as rapacious as ever.

Within the close vicinity of Nanchang, the situation on the surface is quiet and peaceful, but beyond Changshu and Fengcheng, some 60 and 40 miles respectively from Nanchang, there is no peace. Chaos and confusion are keeping the population under heavy strain. Not a boat moves except those commandeered for military service up and down the Kan River, and even the ferry boats at Changshu, the live center of communications, are no longer plying.

Nanchang is now quiet, but the superficial tranquility is sensed merely as the lull before the storm. While there is now far less appearance of war conditions than one or two weeks ago at Nanchang, it is generally believed at Nanchang that none of the opposing armies would agree to walk home without a decisive fight in Kiangsi.

General Wu Pei-fu, while proclaiming that he would prefer to have the Kiangsi deadlock settled peacefully, if he ever comes down from Loyangfu, will no doubt follow his usual procedure of setting similar situations by presenting a peace proposition backed by a readiness to accept the challenge, should Li Liehchun decline his peace overtures. Such is the general opinion among official circles about the ultimate outcome of General Wu's mission in coming to the Yangtsze to settle the Kiangsi fighting.

The former northern garrisons of Hunan are now streaming into Kiangsi by way of Hankow and Kiukiang enroute to Nanchang, where General Tsai Chen-haun says he is most anxious to fight out the issue. General Tsai is reported to have ordered an advance on southern troops on July 18, and the result of the engagements are not yet to hand. However, there is in circulation the wildest of rumors that southern forces have captured Nanchang, and that General Tsai Chen-hsun has taken his flight to Kiukiang. The rumors are alleged to have been originated by former troops of ex-Tuchun Chen Kuang-yuan.

Big League Ball Team Coming To The Orient

Tokio, July 20.—In regard to the proposed tour of Japan by a major league baseball club, a recent report from Chicago says that the club is to be composed of players from both the American and National leagues, but selection of these will not be made until the championship race in the two leagues is over.

President Johnson lost little time in sanctioning the tour. When informed that the players chosen for the team would receive no remuneration other than their expenses, President Johnson expressed his complete approval. He said that the trip was different from any other ever planned, and was entirely lacking in barnstorming aspects. He said it was an educational trip and in fact, a missionary work which commanded the commendation and support of the baseball world.

It is proposed to have the players in the Orient for 4 months, playing about 20 games, 12 of which will be played in Japan against Waseda and Keio.

Herbert Hunter, who has won prominence in Japan as coach of the universities, will be in charge of the tour and will Select the players. 14 men and 2 umpires and a newspaperman will be included in the personnel.

Australia, South Africa Resent Honors As Slurs

London, June 16.—The publication of the honors lists on the occasion of King George's birthday on June 3 and at the New Year create usually a ripple of mild excitement in England and scarcely more than a polite interest elsewhere throughout the empire. But this year the birthday honors have produced something like a storm in at least two of the dominions.

A few years back the Canadian Parliament, by formal resolution, requested that the practice of bestowing titles on Dominion citizens should be ended so far as Canada was concerned, and it is to be noted that in the last brithday honors the Canadian Premier took a privy councillorship, which, of course, carries no title with it. Now it looks as though the other dominions were going to line up behind Canada in rejecting titles for their citizens.

The question has been brought to a head by titles bestowed in the birthday honors upon certain citizens of Australia and a certain citizen of South Africa. The former is Henry N. Barwell, Premier of South Australia, who has been created a knight. This, declares the New South Wales Labor Conference, is "an insult to White Australia"—a phrase which refers to the fact that the recipient of the honor holds that Australia's tropical north, at present an almost unpopulated land, cannot be colonised successfully without the introduction of colored labor. The declaration is not one merely of Labor's ordinary hostility to titles. In Australia, a robustly democratic country where Labor is one of the two great political parties and where it frequently holds office, there is certainly no great enthusiasm for titles, anyway.

But the question of "White Australia" is one on which the two parties, Liberal and Labor, think precisely alike. It is not a matter of party politics, but an article of national faith. The recipient of the birthday knighthood is about the only Australian politician of any standing at all who has expressed himself against the intense popular sentiment in favor of keeping the commonwealth "white" at all costs. There is no doubt whatever that ninety-nine Australians in a hundred agree with the vocal Laborites that the British government has made a bad break in advising the King to select this one of all Australian politicians for honor.

Still less is there question about the attitude of South Africa toward the honor conferred on one of her citizens—in this case a peerage bestowed on Sir Joseph Benjamin Robinson, earlier created a baronet, who is chairman of the Robinson South African Banking Company, and a mining as well as a banking magnate of the dominion. Whether due to his part in the recent Rand strike or for some other reason, it is clear that Sir Joseph Robinson's new dignity is not viewed with any favor by his fellow citizens. General Smuts has emphatically assured the Union House of Representatives that he had nothing to do with suggesting that such a distinction should be bestowed. He was asked by a representative whether any member of the Union government advised the imperial government in the bestowal of this peerage; whether the Prime Minister was prepared to state the services which justified the honor, and the reasons which had actuated the imperial government. "The answer to all these questions is in the negative," replied General Smuts tersely.

The British community in South Africa, however, is not prepared to leave the matter there. Indicative of its attitude is the comment of The Cape Times, a level-headed organ of the British community, whose allegiance to the imperial tie between Great Britain and the Dominion of South Africa is unimpeachable. "Sir Joseph Benjamin Robinson's peerage," declares this paper in unwontedly direct language, "is a bitter disappointment to patriotic South Africans, arousing spontaneous disapproval throughout the Union, reflecting inevitable a most regrettable slur upon the status of men decorated for acknowledged public services and likely to react upon the loyal affection which South Africans of both white races have for the royal house.

"If such an insult to South African opinion is ever repeated on the initiative of the Imperial government," adds The Cape Times, "the Union Parliament will do well to express its views about the grant of peerages to South Africans as Canada did."

There is a not unnatural reluctance on the part of the British press to enter into the discussion carried on so violently in the dominions. At the same time it seems clear that these incidents are bound to stimulate the tendency toward limiting the grant of titles of honor severely to Great Britain itself and not thrusting their bestowal upon the more demoratic sentiment of the dominions overseas. Ireland was a notable absentee from the latest birthday honors list, and the Irish Free State, in view of its so recent republican past, is certain to make common cause with the more distant dominions in rejecting the grant of titles to its citizens.

"It seems unfortunate," comments the Liberal "Manchester Guardian," "that, despite the known reluctance of the dominions to be enriched with titled citizens, the home government still persists in making the fountain of honor play upon them, and play,' moreover, like an ill-directed hosepipe, on individuals whom their fellows consider quite unsuitable for such conspicuous treatment. Those who might conceivable be thought suitable are apparently dodging the jet. Would it not be well to give the stop cock for dominion titles a full turn and cut off the flow entirely?"

Even more significant is the comment of The Morning Post, the organ of aristocracy and high Toryism. The honors list, in the view of The Morning Post, illustrates "Mr. Lloyd George's remarkable flair for detecting merit in rich men." The honors list, declares the Tory organ satirically, "shows that the capacity for national and imperial service is almost directly proportionate to wealth and it is one of the most conspicuous qualities of Mr. Lloyd George to have discovered the fact, and to have acted upon it in spite of his congenital inclination to believe that the humble and poor monopolise the virtues." This of course, is a scarcely veiled reference to the current charge that, if titles are not actually sold, at least the fact of contributions to the party funds weighs far more than a little in their bestowal. Adds The Morning Post to Lloyd George:

"Remembering the deficiencies of those less percipient and discriminating than himself, he should condescend to particulars. To rehearse the good deeds which he has selected for honor would be a reward greater than honor itself. Perhaps, after this regretable ebullition from the Cape, he will consider the suggestion."

British Airplanes To Carry Parachutes For All Travelers Of Air

London, June 25.—Compulsory use of parachutes on all passenger carrying aircraft is a decision of the Air Ministry which will shortly be made public.

At present the "airway companies" carry lifebelts for their passengers when crossing the seas, but none has yet thought fit to equip its air "liner" with aerial life buoys.

Their argument against the practice is that such a step would militate against the use of aeroplanes for transport, since travelers would not care even to contemplate coming to earth in so thrilling a way.

Ignoring this, the Air Ministry is taking the line that "safety first" must be the rule of the air. It is pointed out that at least 2,000 lives were saved during the war by means of parachutes with kite balloons and, although no form of transport can ever be free from accident and constant risk of accident, the peculiar risk of accident, the peculiar nature of air travel makes it incumbent that no possible means of safety should be ignored.

Living Ancestors Of Our Potatoes

Thirteen thousand feet above sea level in the mountains of Northern Equador, the region which is believed by scientists to be the cradle of the potato race there has been found a true wild species of the plant which is quite different from the cultivated tubers. These discoveries were made by Wilson Popence of the bureau of plant industry, department of agriculture.

Our own large, developed potatoes would be just about as proud of these mountain Murphys as Mr. Bryan is of the anthropoid apes; for the Andean variety from which our own has sprung is too small to be of economic importance. Plant breeders in this country, however, hope that tests may show characteristics which will make it worth while to combine them with our cultivated kinds by crossing. The wild tubers produce seed rather freely, but also are subject to one of the potato diseases of which their cultured brothers are often victims.

PARBURY WINS 1922 SINGLES TENNIS TITLE BY WIN OVER WADE BY 6-3, 6-2, 6-0.

Steady Play Against Recs Man's Erratic Tennis Tells The Tale

The singles tennis title of the Shanghai Lawn Tennis Association was taken in fairly easy fashion yesterday afternoon on the courts of the Shanghai Cricket Club by L. Parbury who won by quite superior play over J. L. Wade in three straight sets 6-3, 6-2, 6-0.

The winner was the steadier, the better player throughout. Wade was wild in his play, particularly in the first ball of his service in the first game which went to Parbury without opposition. The Recs player settled down to better tennis in the second game while Parbury was finding himself. The game went to five deuces before Parbury lost the honor on two netted balls.

Wade placed the ball in difficult positions in the third game of the first set and had Parbury in difficulties on returns with the result that the score was brought to 2 for Wade and one for Parbury The next game was lost on Wade's poor service. Two double serves, a net and an out gave the win to Parbury. Wade up to this stage was wild and weak on his first ball and often in attempting a driving second serve lost the point.

The following games of the first set were all for Parbury. Wade appeared to suffer from nervousness, and Parbury appeared to realise it. The result was that Parbury laid back in his game, in the hope of benefitting from Wade's faults. The score below will show just how the match went.

Parbury took the first two games of the second set chiefly on Wade's outs. Wade came back for a moment in the third game on two nice placements and two outs by Parbury and brought the score to 2-1. The rest of the set was practically all for Parbury. The latter showed signs of tiring in the fourth game yet on Wade's faults he managed to win out in that and the fifth and the sixth. In the seventh game Wade counted his second score while Parbury was resting on, but the next game gave the set to Parbury on Wade's three netted balls and a driving placement which Wade was unable to handle properly. The set ended at 6-2.

The last set was all for Parbury. Wade didn't have a chance in the first game, and in the second game after deuce he netted two easy balls, after deuce was declared. He played wildly in the third game and thereafter was quite out of the play.

The final for the singles title was not the best yet seen in Shanghai Parbury has played a superior game all through the 1922 season and in the match yesterday carried through in his advertised style Wade played well for the first few games, but with the new champion outclassing him so greatly and contending every stroke he offered, he apparently suffered from nervousness, which worked for erratic tennis.

It might safely be said that Wade lost the game for himself on his own faults. Were the nets and outs counted up it would readily be seen that the Rec's man was the greatest offender in the way of perfect tennis. Parbury,though he made his sufficient number of faults still played when needed a game that would win in any company in Shanghai.

The score follows:

SAYS 'BUGS' Baer:

ROUGHTOWN GOLF CLUB BEAUTIFUL

It Was The First Complete Eighteen Shellhole Course In America

Dear skin:

I see that Gink is now a golfer Is there anything that he couldn't do wrong? If so, let me know at your earliest inconvenience. Any letter that I ever got from you can be considered as having been opened by mistake.

Yours until barbers shave with the grain,

ANATOLE PARSLEY.
Lido, Long Beach.

That Lido is one tough golf course. The Glutt once played there with Pete Campbell and broke all his clubs on his back dues.

But the Roughtown Golf Club was so tough it was laid out by undertakers. It is generally conceded that golf parks are designed by engineers employed by the firms who manufacture high priced golf balls.

Having too much money to build his own clubhouse, Gink borrowed a roundhouse from the Erie Railroad. The members drove up in freight engines and checked their soft coal at the door.

Any member who went around the course in less than a lifetime was slapped with a medal by Congress.

The first bunker was the Grand Canyon. It was borrowed from the Santa Fe tourists for this club. It was a cold course on a windy day but very warm in the traps. So the members were always comfortable. Meals were served both in the dining room and in the bunkers.

All the barbed wire collected after the war was bought by Gink for holiday decorations whenever the club put on a dance.

The initiation fee was an armful of rubles diluted with marks.

After that, dues were optional and compulsory. Gink was the treasurer and used the umbrella rack for a safety deposit vault.

Everybody in Roughtown was anxious to join this club in self-defense.

Kingman To Be Assigned To Shanghai Y.M.C.A.

Announcement has been made of the appointment to Shanghai of Mr. Harry Kingman who becomes the student secretary of the Shanghai Y.M.C.A. Kingman has been for the past year a language student in Nanking, during which time he has become active in Shanghai baseball. Kingman formerly played with the New York Americans.. He is a graduate of Pomona College and of Springfield Y.M.C.A. College. He was engaged in Y. work in America before coming to China, having been for several years a student secretary at the University of California. Kingman's work in Shanghai will be in connection with the college Y work among the students of middle schools and colleges of this city which we are told is the second largest center of Chinese education in China. No doubt his athletic abilities will come in handy in connection with this work. What makes the baseball men happy is that it will add another steady regular to the Shanghai team.

BOWLS CLUB AND RECS TO MEET TODAY

(BY THE SHOT)

Flushed with victory after their substantial win in the Wallace Cup, the big Club are entertaining their powerful rivals from over the way today. It is to be a seven rink affair and the issue should be so close, that there is bound to be a goodly number of spectators lining the banks.

Up to date the Recs have an unbeaten certificate in the Inter-Club games, a condition of things which they are out to see is not altered. Looking over the teams, both sides appear very strong, and the Club are doing so well just now that they will not be far behind at the finish.

The championship ties continue to be fought out with any amount of vigor, and game after game is only settled at the last end. T. Spring's rink overcame Geordie Millar's team from Wayside last Sunday after a tough tussle. With the skips to go down at the last end the Waysiders were 1 shot down but laying three temporarily. Tom was equal to altering the conditions by laying two shots himself. By the way the Juniors are modestly advancing in the Championship ties and with their two rinks, they hold a strong hand in this event.

A popular victory in the Singles was the one of T. E. Trueman's over R. P. Phillips on the latter's ground. It was not won without an effort as R. P. was bowling very well, only to see the Major come in time after time for the shot.

The brothers Veitch lost their match against Stormes and Smith after looking all over winners at the 19th end when they led 22-15. A five at the 20th end for G. B. altered things however and a long end in semi-darkness ended in the Junior pair's favor. The game was remarkable for the number of spectacular shots especially on the part of H. Veitch. At the 19th end, the jack in the ditch, and Veitch lying the shot, Stormes saved, lying on the extreme edge of the ditch.

Harry with his last wood sent it down at express speed and wiped it off the map—a perfect shot on such a keen green.

Tom Poignand's rink meet the big four from Yangtszepoo on Sunday morning and a great game should be witnessed.

DOUBLEHEADER BASEBALL GAME MAY BE STAGED AT PARK THIS AFTERNOON

Californians May Play First Game With Isabel Gobs Playing second

Tides and baggage smasher strikes and typhoons 'nevery-thing interfered yesterday with a first class game of baseball between the Shanghai nine and the California Collegians, and that aint all—

It is hoped that the game may be pulled this afternoon, commencing at 2:30 o'clock. The boat which brought the San Franciscans in is still in port and if all goes well in the baseball way of speaking they may be here today long enough to play a return game after their series here a few weeks ago.

Manager Gallop last night said that he had the nine from the Admiral's boat, the Isabel in reserve for today's game in the event that the Californians would not have sufficient time in port today for a game, so that local fandom is certain of good baseball whichever way the strike or the tide flows.

It was decided to post notices at the American Club, the Astor House, the Palace Hotel and at the entrance of the Race Enclosure before game time today in the event that the Californians would not be on hand for the early game. And it was further decided that should the Native Sons not be available by reason of their boat sailing too early to permit a game, the Isabel men will fill in for the date with a game commencing at four.

Should the Californians, however, be in a position to play at 2:30 p.m. a doubleheader will be staged with the Isabel men playing the second game commencing at 4 o'clock or there bouts.

John Scott will pitch against the Californians today if the game is played, with Harry Kingman at first base and Capt. Hopkins in the outfield. Should a second game be played, Maloney or Hopkins will work on the mound with Kingman still at first.

For tomorrow a selected team of Japanese composed principally of the M.B.K. nine which has cleaned up everything in Hongkew park will oppose the big Shanghai Nine. Swann will probably pitch against them.

FEW NEWSPAPERS MORE CONTROL

Veteran Paris Editor Says Liberty Of The Press Is A Bad Thing

Paris, June 24.—The problem of how to make French newspapers more representative of the nation's thought and ideals which has been the subject of a study by one of the largest weekly political reviews here recently brought the criticism from Arthur Meyer, dean of French journalists that the liberty of the press is a bad thing generally.

Although anything savoring of an attack on the liberty of the press seems strange in a country which has shed its blood in revolutions and wars for the sacred cause of free speech and free thought, M. Meyer's views take a novel form when he declares that individual merit is hampered by the fact that worthy writing perforce is given an obscure position even in the more obscure newspapers, whereas if there were not so many newspapers every one would be reading and quoting the writings of men whose names are so far unknown.

"Yes, I am an enemy of press liberty," M. Meyer says. "It benefits neither the journalists nor public opinion. It only serves the Government as it provides a sort of safety valve whereby public discontent can be propagated." M. Meyer considers that the present status of the Parisian press present conclusive proof that his arguments are correct.

Paris now boasts of about fifty daily newspapers, some of which have less than 1,000 circulation but each providing a definite line of political argument which merits attention. Yet in all these newspapers hardly a real reporting journalist interpreting daily movements is to be found, the majority of the writers being those whose fame already has been gained by literary work outside editorial rooms. The work of these men is used merely as a high priced advertisement to gain the public's attention.

"It would be much better with a few newspapers under stricter control," M. Meyer says. "Scores of articles appearing in small newspapers today would be considered remarkable in Paris if there were only three or four newspapers. It is a fact that there has never been a wealth of good journalists except when the press has been restrained, this demanding intense improvement in the tone of the arguments."

Andre Tardieu, however, considers that the fault of the press today lies in the fact that most French newspapers do not have their own correspondents abroad. He pointed out that, besides a few of the big papers, his own Echo National and the Havas Agency, foreign correspondents are virtually unknown to Paris newspapers.

"Political newspapers naturally pay little attention to being well informed," says M. Tardieu, "their role being either to support the Government or hurl epithets at it. Today it costs 250,000 francs a year to keep a correspondent in the United States. Even the Havas Agency is subordinated to the services of Reuter's Agency, and, therefore, it is the English who control our knowledge as to what is happening in the United States."

M. Tardieu proposes that the Government furnish facts and figures freely to American news agencies, but doubts whether this will ever happen, as the Government does not even attempt to distribute such information in France.

Chinese Slayer Gets Clemency From Court

Washington, July 1.—Liang Sung-wan, Chinese student, convicted of killing Ben Sen-wu, an under secretary to the Chinese Educational Mission, in January, 1919, will not be executed until November 17 next.

Justice McCoy, presiding in the Criminal Court here, granted the Chinese youth the stay because of an appeal pending before the Court of Appeals. He was to have been executed June 2.

Sir Joseph Duveen Praises English Art

London, June 24.—England today is producing the greatest modern art in the world, according to Sir Joseph Duveen. He added that America is coming along rapidly, that she is not only buying pictures but that Americans are painting vividly themselves. Sir Joseph, who has just arrived from the United States, said further:

"Never since the eighteenth century have we in this country possessed such splendid painters. I do not propose to mention names, but I predict with confidence that posterity will regard the works of some of the artists I have in mind as we do those of the old masters. It is quite a mistaken idea to suppose that the only great art is that which has been bequeathed to us from the centuries past.

"If one knows how to choose one cannot but realise that really great art is being produced now and I have been trying to encourage it. American interest in art is very notable and is increasing, but you will find that American collectors are buying cautiously. Americans are making good pictures themselves, but I repeat that we in England now have living artists who are greater than can be claimed by any other country in the world."

Vatican Would Buy All Russian Relics

Rome, June 24.—Bargaining for the purchase of Russian church property, to prevent melting down the precious metals, has provoked a controversy between the Vatican and the Bolsheviki. The Vatican announces that it purposes buying the religious relics in both Orthodox and Catholic churches, and paying cash. The Soviet Government, through Vorovsky, envoy to Rome, denied this, saying that the Vatican's proposal through Mgr. Pizzardo at Genoa was made regarding merely the purchase of the religious relics confiscated in the Catholic churches. He said the despatch was garbled, and Moscow interpreted it to mean that the Vatican proposed to buy all the church relics in Russia, representing many millions of dollars.

While the Bolsheviki are enthusiastic over the prospects, big business is skeptical, suggesting that the Vatican is not likely to spend so much for the relics, and ardent Orthodox Russians have protested against the transfer of their treasure into the hands of the rival church. The Vatican has proposed not merely to secure the Catholic relics but to pay hard cash for all the religious relics in Russia, through the Catholic representative, Cieplak, in Petrograd.

The Soviet Government takes a stand in replying to the Archbishop of Canterbury's protest against the ousting of Patriarch Tikhon of the Orthodox Church, which shows the Bolshevist determination to force through a ruthless church confiscation and an intention to crush the Russian Orthodoxy despite outside Christian indignation. This reply, signed by Senilijenoff, a Bolsherist commissar, mocks the Anglican clergy, saying that they have united themselves with the higher Orthodox clergy, who always have conspired with the Czarist bureaucrats and the nobility against the Russian people.

It says the Anglican clergy remained indifferent when England blockaded Russia, causing the death of millions of workers, peasants and children. The reply was communicated to The New York Herald correspondent through the Vatican.

The Pope has not accepted the Anglican church's invitation to participate in a protest against Bolshevist violations; but a month earlier he himself sought the mercy of the Soviet Government relative to Patriarch Tikhon and the members of the Orthodox Church who were on trial.

English Scientists Declare War On Milk

London, June 15.—Bootleg whiskey may be the cause of controversy in America, but in "wet" England a controversy is raging over milk.

"Never drink milk; it is an unnatural food save for the young," declared Dr. C. Webb Johnson.

"Great nations have been fed upon milk and have prospered —the Scotch and the Irish, for instance," retorted Professor H. E. Armstrong.

That was enough; the fight is on. The pro-milk and the anti-milk advocates are now up to their elbows in ink writing letters to the press.

"TOLD in the HILLS"

"If You Know How to Pray, Pray for Me To-night—for Me and the Other Men in That Death Trap!"

Then this despised "squaw man" was off to save from an Indian massacre the men who had shamefully jailed him for a common horse thief!

Only the girl knew his heart—she and the brother for whose sin he had buried himself in the West.

But when his great day came, his defamers found that his "black" soul was white and his "yellow" blood, spilled for them, was red—red!

"Told in the Hills" is a mighty epic of the West of the pioneers, of scout and gold hunter and roving Indian, of the West as it was in other times and never will be again.

The novel has thrilled countless thousands. Now Robert Warwick, with a brilliant supporting cast including Ann Little, Wanda Hawley, Tom Forman, Monte Blue, Eileen Percy, Hart Hoxie and Guy Oliver, has given the story life in a great screen masterpiece. Don't miss it!

Girl Prodigy Talks On Her Early Education

New York, June 20.—Rosie Reeve, the eleven-year-old prodigy who proposes to enter Columbia University next Fall for a law course, came here recently from London, Ontario, where she had completed her freshman year at Western University. She is accompanied here by her father, Professor Thomas L. Reeve, of Chicago. Yesterday she spoke of her achievements and aims, saying:

"This higher education just comes natural to me as a result of the intense training which my father gave me early in life. When I got through the second grade in the Chicago public schools, father thought I wasn't learning much of a practical nature and decided to teach me along his own lines. He is a linguist and an expert in phonetics. He thereupon began drilling me in some of the subjects taught in high school, and to my surprise I found that they came easy to me."

"When it came time for me to enter high school, I found that I already had mastered most of the freshman and sophomore subjects and so we decided that I wouldn't go to high school. During the next two years father coached me in high school subjects and when I was nine years of age I had an education equivalent to that possessed by the average high school graduate of eighteen or nineteen.

"So last Fall I entered Western University at London, Ontario. There I took English literature, Spanish, French and chemistry. I don't like to appear a braggart, but I finished at the head of my class in all four studies.

"In the meantime I had been helping father in his compilation of a phonetic dictionary containing more than 64,000 words. I now believe that I have a vocabulary of this size at my command. So has my sister Birdie, fourteen years old, who is able to write 135 words a minute on the typewriter.

"Right now I suppose that I ought to be down in the fifth grade; learning numbers and spelling and such things, but really, to me such subjects are as puerile as kindergarten work would be to a grown man, and I want to tackle something really worth while, like law.

"I can't assign any particular reason for my aptitude in these higher subjects. Perhaps the ordinary little girl might get along as rapidly as I did with them, but possibly she wouldn't be willing to work so hard as I have done. While I haven't been what is called a grind at college, nevertheless I have had to work hard to accomplish what I have.

"My father has some theories regarding the education of children that may open up a new avenue of teaching when they are fully demonstrated. He believes that the average school course is of little or no value above giving the little ones a knowledge of such rudimentary subjects as reading, writing and arithmetic. He believes that the average child is capable of grasping these higher elements of learning if they are presented in an attractive way, which the child can understand.

"I believe I am a living example of the soundness of his theory."

Russian Oil Deal Is Hoax, Declares English Official

London, July 5.—"The world has been hoaxed over the supposed Russian oil deal," says Leslie Urquhart, oil adviser to Lloyd George at Genoa, former British Consul-General at Moscow and chairman of the British Oil Fields Consolidated Company.

"Half my life," Urquhart goes on, "has been spent in the oil industry in Russia, so I am in the position of knowing as much about Russian oil as most people. The world wants oil, but if it looks to Russia for it, now or in the immediate future, it will look in vain. Russia cannot supply it.

"The talk about Russia giving us all the oil we want is a myth.

"Before oil can pour out of Russia rivers of gold will have to flow in.

"The biggest oilfield in Russia is in Baku. From 1904 to 1918 the Baku wells produced oil at the rate of about 7,000,000 tons a year.

"No more dramatic change has ever been witnessed than the change which occurred in the Baku oilfield with the coming of the Soviet regime. The production dropped from 7,000,000 tons a year to 3,000,000 tons and it has remained at 3,000,000 ever since.

"In 1917 there were 3,700 oil wells producing oil in Baku; today there are not 800 wells producing oil.

"To maintain the former production Russia had to drill 750,000 feet of new wells every year. The Russians are now drilling in a year what they previously drilled in twelve days.

"These facts prove that Russia is not in a position to export oil. Before she can attain to her former output she will have to drill for five years to make up the leeway that has been lost. The drilling alone will cost $100,000,000.

"When, after years of work and the expenditure of millions of money, she manages to equal her pre-war production, the improvement in her own transport and industries will absorb every drop of oil she can produce.

"Instead of being in a position to export oil, Russia, in the most favorable circumstances, will be compelled to import oil for many years to come."

Scottish Estates Coming On Market

London, June 24.—Within the next two weeks there will have been, or will be 1,500,000 acres of Scottish land for sale at auction. One firm alone is putting up 1,000,000 acres, containing many estates rich in tradition, including Crawfordton in Dumfrieshire, and also the Strathaven and Dalserf estates. The Motherwell, Bothwell, Hamilton and Shotts estates will be sold at Hamilton Tuesday and the Cambuslang estates at Glasgow Thursday. The immediate sales also include many English properties of smaller acreage but famous in history.

At Mydelton Lodge in Yorkshire, which goes back to the Reformation, is being sold, and there are about forty attractive bargains being offered by families who have been forced to relinquish their ownership by the high taxes and changed conditions since the war. The number of rich Americans now here who are believed desirous of buying English estates may have had some effect on the increased number of offerings in the market.

Boston Man Saved After Taking Poison

Boston, June 15.—Look before you drink is now the motto of Thomas E. Merrick, of Boston. Merrick went to the cubbord to sample his private stock, but in the darkness seized upon the wrong bottle. He did not realise his mistake until he had taken two drinks of insectide. Physician arrived in time to save his life.

London Theaters Start 'Trial Patron' System

The Summer slump in the theatrical business has induced managers to accept patrons on a trial basis. You are given two seats for the performance and you don't pay for them unless you feel that you had your money's worth.

Tang Shao-yi To Be Premier, But Will Not Go To Peking

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, July 27.—As previously reported, it has been decided to form a formal Cabinet under the Premiership of Mr. Tang Shao-yi subject to an approval of the Parliament.

In this connection, it is reported in highly reliable quarters that as the visit to Peking of Mr. Tang is almost impossible a plan has been formed to make the Parliament recognise the Tang Shao-yi Cabinet pro forma and then to appoint another man Acting Premier nominally but Premier in reality.

In consequence, the competition for the post of Acting Premier is to all appearance getting brisk in political circles here.

Japan May Let Foreign Ships In On Coastal Trade

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, July 22.—The Government, assisted by business men of prominence, is reported to be investigating the proposed throwing open of the Japanese coastal trade to foreign vessels.

Hold Conference On Outer Mongolia

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 25.—A special conference was held last Saturday under the auspices of the Russian Affairs Commission, with Mr. Liu Ching-jen presiding, to discuss the restoration of Outer Mongolia as a dependency of China. No report of the meeting has been given out.

New Tramway Will "Make Over" Capital

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, July 25.—Soon Peking will suffer that bugbear of Chinese life, losing face. The face of Peking will have entirely changed by next July when four lines of trams will be running on the principal streets.

According to the plans of the Peking Electric Tramway Company, Ltd., these four lines will need fifty li of tracks which will weigh some 5,000 tons. There will be an original stock of thirty power cars and sixty trailers, four trucks, two water cars and one repair car, a total of ninety seven cars. There will be one power station equipped with 1500 kilovolt generators. It is proposed to erect 1,850 poles to carry 108 li of wire.

Tea Shippers Ask Freedom From Tax

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, July 24.—The tea merchants in Hankow have wired the Central Government asking that the exemption from export duty on tea be continued. For three years the tea business has been very poor in Hankow. The tea leaves usually come from Hunan and Hupeh but the local disturbances and civil wars have made that source almost nil. The Russian and Mongolian markets have also fallen down. In normal times Hankow handles over a million cases of tea per year but last year there were only a few thousand cases received and less than half were shipped out. Therefore, they ask that the customs collector be instructed to allow the exemption.

PARIS-LONDON RATE

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, July 27.—The Paris-London cross-rate is quoted today at: £1—53.68 Francs.

Hairnet Market

Messrs. Yannoulatos Bros (China) have received the following report from their Chefoo head office on the hairnet market.

The market is as last reported.

The report that makers are active again making hairnets has been confirmed and has somewhat eased the market and prevented prices from advancing.

Actual stocks are small (this, however, does not include stocks purchased by speculators who are still holding back) but supplies are now coming in in small quantities and will undoubtedly increase during August.

There is a slight improvement in the human hair market.

Exchange Fluctuations

Asia Banking Corporation

July 28, 1922

Spot and forward bar silver were each up ⅛d. in London yesterday.

The New York price is unchanged and the London-New York cross rate advanced to 444⅛.

The only change in our official quotations today was a rise in the Franc rate to 930.

Our market was steady through the morning though a shade easier at the tiffin interval than at the opening.

At the opening business in Sterling was done at 3-5-⅞ and in Gold Dollars at 77⅝.

However, later on there were good buyers at these rates and at the tiffin interval there no sellers of Sterling at better than 3-5 13-16 and of Gold Dollars at 77½.

There were also some buyers at there rates.

This state of affairs continued during the afternoon when very little business was done.

Business in Yen was done at rates varying between 61½ and 61-9-16.

There were buyers at the latter rate at the tiffin interval.

Francs were in somewhat better demand today, banks quoting to buy Franc T. T. at 940 and bills at 965.

China and India both bought silver in London yesterday and the market is reported as steady.

The New York market is dull with nothing doing.

Hankow Market

The British Chamber of Commerce at Hankow write as follows in their weekly circular dated Hankow, July 19:

FINANCE

Bar silver dropped steadily from 35⅞ ready and forward on the 12th to 35½ ready 35⅝ forward.

New York-London cross rate rose gradually from 443⅝ on 12th to 446⅛ on 19th.

The Official T.T. rate has remained stationary at 3s. 6½d. all the week with sellers up to 1s. 2d. over rates until 19th, when the market closed weak. G.$ T.T. rate followed the Cross Rate from 78⅝ to 79 with sellers up to 79⅝. 4-m. credits have been quoted down to 3s. 7¾d. but practically no bills came out. Market rates Shanghai Taels 97.325. Local currency Dollars 70.3. Native interest 5½ percent.

EXPORTS

There were inquiries in the market for beans and peas, but at prices which only permitted of small business. Home buyers ideas of prices are now much below the parity of values here, and yet in spite of the absence of demand the local market for produce remains firm and in certain instances has advanced, thus making business more difficult than ever.

IMPORTS

Piece Goods:—The market remains very dull and lifeless, the only business done being a few small sales from stock. Clearances poor.

Yarn:—Nothing to report.

Hongkong Shares

Messrs. Moxon and Taylor of Hongkong write as follows in their weekly share report dated Hongkong, July 21:

Our market has been quite active during the past week and a good many stocks had a considerable advance in prices with buyers prevailing. Forward business still continues on a very small scale.

The Shanghai market has eased off with very little business passing.

Rubber remains neglected.

The following are the principal alterations since last week:

Hongkong Banks:—Have been very firm with few sellers and close with buyers at $882½ after sales at $882½-885.

Unions:—Have been in fair demand principally from coast ports and a good many shares have changed hands at $200-202.

Hongkong Lands:—Eased off a little and close steady with buyers at $218.

Humphreys:—Are wanted at $11¾.

Cantons:—Have buyers at $440 and more would probably be paid.

Hongkong Fires:—Are wanted at $385.

Douglases:—Have firmed up and have come to business at $54½.

Hongkong Hotels:—Are firm at $21 old and $10 new.

Dairy Farms:—Have eased off a little and close steady at $21 old and $20 new.

Hongkong Wharfs:—Have continued their upward movement during the week and close very firm with buyers at $140.

Hoagkong Docks:—Have firmed up to a buying rate of $159½ without attracting sellers.

Hongkong Trams:—Are wanted at $13.80.

China Providents:—Have again firmed up and are in strong demand at $14¼.

Pongee Market

The China Merchants Pongee Association have received the following report on the pongee silk market from their Chefoo head office.

The demand continues to be good but stocks are practically exhausted and we have again to record higher prices.

No improvement in the market can be expected before September-October when the Autumn cocoon crop will be available.

Singapore Rubber Auctions

Singapore, July 12, 1922

A further gradual decline has taken place in the London market during the past week. Spot in London was this morning quoted at 7½d., which marks a decline of ½d. since our last report. New York has declined from 15¼ to 14¾ cents during the same period.

The local market has been rather slow in following the downward trend, owing to a certain amount of short-covering, and sellers are holding out for prices well above the parity of the consuming markets.

814 tons of Rubber were catalogued for sale at today's auction, while 661 tons were offered and 509 tons changed hands.

Prices show for most grades a decline of 1 to 1½ cents on the week.

Awarded Singapore Standard Sheet was wanted, and a few lots sold at 25 cents, whereas the majority of lots catalogued were withdrawn, sellers' idea being ½ cent above buyers' bids.

Sheet equal to Standard was shown a good amount of interest at prices 1 to 1½ cents down.

F.A.Q. and Off Quality parcels found ready buyers.

Awarded Standard 1st Latex Crepe and Crepe equal to Standard were sought for, fetching 25 to 24½ cents; lots in cases realised ½ cent more.

Off Color Latex and Mottled Crepes were on the whole easy of sale.

Fine Browns remained unchanged. Brown, Dark and Barky Crepes sold slightly below last week's prices.

Greeks Have Eyes On Constantinople; May Mark New Dash

Dr. Sun Remains Aboard Gunboat

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, July 24.—Despaches by telegraph and mail indicate the tensity of the Canton situation. Dr. Sun Yat-sen is still on a gunboat anchored off Shameen and General Chen Chiung-ming is at Waichow. The city of Canton and the railway running north are both in the hands of General Chen's troops. While Dr. Sun has a strong following among the people of Canton, his infuence cannot overcome the actual power of the troops.

General Chen a few days ago is reported to have defeated the forces of General Hsu Chung-chih at Shiuchow and the losing side is now entrenching at a place to the east called Shi Hung awaiting for an offensive from General Chen's troops. Not satisfied with this waiting, General Hsu is said to have sent a detachment due south to Ang Yuan, which they took and from which place they can menace the rear of General Chen's men on the railway.

General Hsu has 6,000 of his own men, 3,000 under General Li Pu-ling, and 2,000 Kwangsi troops. General Chen is reputed to have about the same number in this area so that a hard but decisive battle is momentarily expected around Yingtak. This should decide the fate of Dr. Sun, as the victorious troops of General Hsu could then come south to Canton by rail and relieve him there.

On the other hand, if General Chen is successful, all hope of help for Dr. Sun from the outside would be gone and he could do nothing but give up, leaving a clear field for General Chen. One handicap against Dr. Sun is the fact that his ally has little money and consequently little ammunition.

Sometime ago General Chen Chiung-ming is said to laid down as one of his basic principles for reunification with the North that a federation of provinces must be the foundation of the union. He is reported now as being willing to forego this point and the purpose of his agreeableness is his desire to get assistance from General Wu Pei-fu in putting down Dr. Sun.

England To Have Aerial Sleepers

London, June 15.—"Fly-by-night" will be more than a slang phrase if Major-General Sir W. S. Brancker, Civil Aviation Director for Great Britain, has his way.

General Brancker is backing proposals for night flying routes between Paris and London. It is proposed to erect huge beacon lights on the ground along the route to enable the aviators to find their way from Paris to London.

Aerial "sleeping" cars are not altogether an impossibility.

W.H.C. SUPER-DURABLE FLAT PAINT

FLAT WALL FINISH

A perfect Paint of smooth surface for Interior Wall Coating

The surface obtainable with this paint is smooth and flat, i.e., it is not a grainy, dead, lifeless finish, but of a velvety texture. It dries in a reasonably quick time, so that work can be carried out effectively, yet has the property of remaining open long enough to enable the worker to cover a large surface of wall without making laps or edges.

Excellent results with Super Durable Flat Finish are easily obtained, irrespective of the skill of the user, and an elaborate preparation of the surface is usually quite unnecessary.

Super Durable Flat Finish has been tried on non-absorbent surfaces of all kinds and where distemper and oil paint have proved prone to shell or flake off it has always adhered. It gives a lasting finish of surprising beauty.

1 Imperial Gallon covers about 130 square yards one coat.

The Chinese Eastern Protocol And Chinese Politics

BY JOSEF W. HALL

MANY strange things have happened behind the "bar-ber" of the Great Wall since Chang Tso-lin invaded Chihli. One of the first of these to come to light is the Protocol between the Chinese Eastern and South Manchurian Railways, which clinches Japan's economic hold upon northern Manchuria and makes the eastern provinces of Siberia dependent upon Japanese communications and ports for an outlet.

The temporary cutting off of Manchuria from China by the Chihli-Fengtien war, precipitated by Chang Tso-lin, was so timed as to allow of the establishment of the protocol with no interference from Peking, and, indeed, with no publicity at all. The Through Traffic Conference held its last session at Changchun on June 26, and upon the same evening the Japanese and Chinese delegates celebrated the conclusion of the agreement by a dinner in the station buffet. At this time, Chang Tso-lin, after having prolonged his stay in Chihli territory through armistice violations, at last actually withdrew his troops beyond the Great Wall, although still violating faith by taking the Peking-Mukden rolling-stock with him.

When Mr. Kao En-hung, General Wu Pei-fu's nominee for Minister of Communications, came to Peking the latter part of May, he sent an urgent request to Mr. C. C. Wang, Director-General of the Chinese Eastern Railway, to come to Peking and collaborate with him as Vice-Minister of Communications. No satisfactory explanation was given of his failure to come. The Ministry in Peking was apparently uninformed of the Protocol until a few days ago. Since then it has been unable to give out the document lest this be interpreted as ministerial sanction.

It is, however, fatuous to believe that the Chiaotung Administration officials of the Ministry, under Yeh Kung-chow, who had fled before Minister Kao arrived to take over, and who would not be likely to leave such information behind in their files, were ignorant of the scheme. In connection with this, one should remember that C. C. Wang, aside from being under the influence of Chang Tso-lin by reason of his situation, is a hang-over from the Chiaotung Administration, having received his appointment while Yeh Kung-chow, now in Japan, still held the scepter in the Ministry. Dr. Wang's appointment was generally approved and no demand was raised for his removal because he was generally regarded as an 100 percent railway man who would not descend to international or factional politics. If this natural inclination was as generally believed, the influences about him seem to have overruled it.

If one of the reasons behind Chang Tso-lin's original invasion of Chihli was the need for the establishment of a screen behind which to negotiate the railway protocol, and one of the reasons for his prolonged stays, successively at Kuyeh, Lanchow, Chinwangtao and Shanhaikwan, was the need of more time to complete the negotiations, one is inclined to ask what degree of culpability rests upon Wu Pei-fu for his failure to adopt a stronger attitude toward Chang's dilatory withdrawal. The danger that Manchuria would be lost to China through dallying tactics with regard to Chang Tso-lin was repeatedly pointed out to Wu. His officers begged to be allowed to continue the pursuit.

But shortly after Wu's return to Paoting from Tientsin, he entertained a delegate from Mr. Obata. I was in the Paoting headquarters at the time and was told that the visit was occasioned by nothing more important than the news story I had published in which Wu's policy toward Manchuria was set forth. The Secretary of the Japanese Legation afterwards stated positively to me that, whatever was the occasion of the visit, it was not that.

This much I had full occasion to note, that following the visit, all zest for the pursuit of Chang Tso-lin evaporated from the Paoting headquarters, and General Wu adopted the attitude that Chang might have as long as he wanted to get out of Chihli, and might retain his original prestige and position in Manchuria, just so he ultimately withdrew behind the great wall. Wu's changed attitude was noted in his repudiation of the "rebel" movement against Chang along the Chinese Eastern Railway, which forthwith collapsed.

Rathenau

(New York Times)

The assassination of Dr. Walther Rathenau, German Foreign Minister, removes a man who was more powerful in Germany than any other moderate and more generally trusted abroad than any other man who had strength in Germany. What it may mean for German internal affairs is still to be seen, but it must have a serious and deplorable effect on Germany's foreign relations. Rathenau believed that it was possible to be a good German and a good European at the same time. He worked out the agreement with Loucheur for reparations in kind, which, if French and German statesmen will allow it to be put into full operation, will probably result in more actual indemnity to France than could be obtained in any other way. Even his worst mistake, the Treaty of Rapallo with the Russians, seems to have been in Rathenau's mind part of the work of reconstructing Europe.

It was a weakness that he did not see the untimeliness of that agreement—a weakness perhaps due to the visionary element in the make-up of this captain of industry, who belied theories of second-generation decadence by turning out to be as good a business man as his father, and a philosopher and statesman besides. But on the whole his work as Minister of Reconstructions, and afterward of Foreign Affairs, was a great contribution to the restoration of Europe. Rathenau's services in organising and distributing the raw material supply of Germany in the war ought to have guaranteed his patriotism to his fellow-citizens. But to the parties of the Right he was a weak-kneed idealist, guilty of the crime of honestly trying to carry out the treaty, and of the worse crime of telling the Germans that the treaty could be executed without ruining Germany, that Germany's prosperity did not necessarily imply the ruin of her neighbors. And so he was murdered.

Socialist members of the Reichstag turned on Helfferich, who had made a venomous attack on Rathenau only the day before with cries of "You are the murderer!" Helfferich is an ally of Hugo Stinnes, whose mastery of German business and attempted domination of the German Government were held in check chiefly by Rathenau. Stinnes will profit by the murder, for his most implacable and strongest enemy has fallen. But it is not to be supposed that Helfferich and Stinnes had anything to do with the affair. Helfferich merely forced the match into the powder magazine; it is not his fault if it exploded. As in Ireland and in Illinois, the loose talk of highly placed personages has its reaction on crackbrained minds further down the scale; but the highly placed personages are free from blood guilt, because they never meant it that way.

Erzberger was murdered, Scheidemann's murder was attempted. Rathenau was incalculably more valuable to Germany and Europe than both of them. The militarist reactionaries who did not stop at wholesale murder to win their ends in the war are not likely to be frightened by retail murder if that seems the only way to prevent Germany from becoming a democratic State with which her neighbors can live in peace.

Interior Decoration

The Principles of Interior Decoration. By Bernard C. Jakway. The Macmillan Company.

This extremely readable and eminently sane little volume was designed, so the author explains, "primarily to be of interest to the beginner and the reader whose knowledge of interior decoration is limited rather than to the artist and the expert." To this end he has made it a sort of A. B. C. of the aesthetics of interior decoration, carefully defining each term as he proceeds, and choosing to err rather on the side of being too elementary than on that of assuming too much knowledge. After an initial chapter on the nature and method of the art, he passes on to emphasize the importance of "Fitness to Purpose," pointing out that the treatment of any room in any house involves the interplay of three factors—the personal, the architectural and the aesthetic. All things available for decoration should be intrinsically good looking, they must satisfy personal requirements and must also be in harmony with architectural requirements. It follows that the number of objects which will fully justify their presence in a given room is usually small, the smaller the better, so the author insists, since the commonest error in interior decoration is superfluity—too much color, too many and inharmonious forms, too much furniture, too many pictures. There are few families who escape the enduring curse of ugliness which they lack the courage to discard, heirlooms and wedding presents which remain a perennial discord in otherwise harmonious apartments.

Mr. Jakway goes quite thoroughly into his subject, discussing in turn wall coverings and window hangings, the texture and pattern of wall papers, the correct and incorrect lines of period furniture, the right and wrong frames for pictures in any given wall space. Many pages are devoted to the discussion of color, which has always been the distinctive feature of Oriental decoration, just as line has, for the most part, dominated Occidental decoration. The growing modern tendency in Europe and America is to pay more attention to color and rather less to line—a movement which the author regards with favor, since line and form are hard and masculine, while color is feminine, adaptable and mystic. He expatiates at length upon "The Dominant Hue." Red, for instance, gives warmth and dignified welcome; the ideal library is always red, and in a dining room red is indissolubly bound with the ideas of warmth, richness and hospitality. Yellow, on the other hand, is a dominant hue for any room, and is equally at home in the cheapest or most sumptuous surroundings. Blue is best adapted by nature to the bedroom, being suggestive of stillness and inactivity. Where violet is used it is always because of personal preference rather than any innate fitness for any particular room.

The style of the volume is lucid and concise, and is supplemented by a generous number of illustrations, which by clever contrast drive home forcibly the right and wrong way. Altogether this is a serviceable volume for the well intentioned homemaker who has not learned to think along the right channels.

Financial Indications

(New York Times)

The depressing facts of the economic situation leap to the eye. There are several strikes on a great scale, with the unrest which gives them political as well as economic importance. The industrial prostration which followed the greatest military and financial crisis in world experience is not yet ended. It is foolish to blink these things, but they are confronted by others less conspicuous, which yet hold them in check. The security market refuses to fall. The explanation seems to be that the depressing factors are temporary, although acute, and that the encouraging elements are permanent, although less conspicuous.

The American farmer is busy. The danger that he might think that the collapse of his prices was due to overproduction and that the remedy was to reduce his crops and raise prices, has passed. Nature, too, has been kind to agriculture. It is true that there has been a decline in the world demand compared with the war demand, but the increase over the prewar demand is the more remarkable. We are exporting farm products at the rate of two billions a year, against one billion before the war. For the latest month for which the analysis was made the exports were a million tons of farm products, against a quarter million before the war. The semi-official estimate is that this year 20,000,000 tons of farm products will be exported. The only limit is the ability of foreigners to pay for the unlimited demand. On that head there is encouragement in the fact that our imports index is 169, against 104 in 1913. Only our own folly can prevent the world from pouring its wealth into our hands for an indefinite future.

Next to the farms rank the railways, our greatest assemblers and distributers of goods. The managers are so impressed by the increase of their car loadings that they are straining themselves to provide new facilities, even when some are alarmed by the strike threat. The Erie is spending $6,000,000 on cars, the Wabash $7,000,000. The New York Central is asking authority to spend $37,000,000 on sundry equipment. Already this year there have been ordered three times as many cars [illegible] 1921. These items for the current week spell wage expenditures during coming months. The resources are supplied by economies in operation. The gross earnings are less than last year, but the net for the first four months is $234,598,079, against $79,280,477. The meaning is that unearned wages are being turned into productive wages, and that profit is about to be earned by the railways by the honest process of doing more work with the same plant. To turn the losses of the farmers and the railways into profits means an economic revolution.

Another inconspicuous but important support of values is the revival of the building industry. It hibernated during the war, but has waked up. For the last full year reported there was an increase of 32 percent in building. In this State the estimated cost of building started in March was $97,204,241, the greatest recorded, double last year and tenfold some war years. Naturally there is a boomlet in the depressed iron trade, despite the coal strike. These things could not be if those of keenest vision and greatest interests at risk did not look beyond the disturbing elements of the day.

These facts have a bearing on theories of depression and prosperity. Labor champions think that the way to produce booms is to raise wages, and thus create demand for products. The difficulty is that the increase of wages is followed by such increases of prices that the nominally higher wages may be really lower. Another theory is that depression begins with lack of demand for goods. A third theory, favored by those trusting the iron trade barometer, is that prosperity or depression depends on the building industry. But the ordinary processes of life do not admit of great variation. If men are to live, they must consume necessities within narrow limits. Construction is large or small according to expectation of profit, and depends on far-seeing investors' appraisal of the outlook. Thus the building boom, the revival of hope for the railways and the certainty of a better year for the farmers combine to overweigh the disturbing economic factors.

Savory Sauces With A Foreign Tang Improve Any Food

A good tomato sauce is an invaluable aid in cooking. In the greater number of the foreign dishes that we like so well, tomato is one of the ingredients used to give that enviable flavor. This is especially true of Italian cooking. It not only gives flavor and color, but it gives a consistency to sauces that cannot be obtained by the use of flour or cornstarch alone.

THAT GARLIC !

One of the ingredients that makes the sauce "just right" is the garlic. Garlic if properly handled is not offensive. Used in small quantities and thoroughly cooked, it gives an indescribable flavor that is never disagreeable. Many who insist that they wouldn't touch anything with garlic are loud in their praises of both Italian and French cooking. Even when it is used uncooked for salad dressings, if handled in the right proportion to the other ingredients used, it gives a "teng" that nothing else can give, and either makes or mars the dressing.

It is hardly worth the time of the average housekeeper to make tomato paste; it can be bought canned at both foreign and domestic grocery stores, and if used carefully a small can goes a long way. Tomato sauce, however, is a different thing. It can be cooked when needed, and after the first few times is as easy to make as any other sauce with which we are familiar.

Another sauce that is well liked and rarely made in any but the foreign households is the anchovy sauce. Anchovies sound like a rare and extravagant ingredient for everyday cooking, but since they can be bought by the ounce, it is not extravagant to make a piquant sauce to dress a plain macaroni or rice dish. A little of the sauce goes a long way and it takes only two or three anchovies in a sauce for a dish sufficient to serve six people

DILL BUT NOT PICKLED

Sauce Milanaise differs from the plain anchovy sauce in that it is strongly flavored with garlic and dill. Dill is one of the spices that we are used to, as a rule, only in pickles. Foreign housewives have long used it as flavor for soups and sauces, and in milanaise sauce the dill flavor is pronounced, but is quite different from the flavor we get in pickles. For this sauce it is better to use the full grown dill than the new dill. The full grown dill looks like the weed known as "wild carrot" or "Queen Ann's lace," but is green and yellow. It can be seen hanging on the door frame of any Italian grocery or fruit store. It can also be had in the large fruit and vegetable markets around town. It is inexpensive and strong in flavor One stalk can be used to flavor a large amount of sauce, making dill an inexpensive source of good flavor.

The recipes given here are those used every day in the Italian households, and if they are accurately followed should give good results the first time they are used. They can, of course, be changed to suit the individual taste, but should be tried out just as they are given here for a fair test.

TOMATO SAUCE

½ small onion
1 clove garlic
1 small stalk celery
2 bay leaves
1 sprig parsley
3 tablespoonfuls oil
½ teaspoonful salt
¼ teaspoonful pepper
8 medium-sized tomatoes (or one No. 2 can).

Chop the onion, garlic, celery and parsley and break up the bay leaves. Add the oil, salt, and pepper Cut up the tomatoes and put all into a kettle with a heavy bottom or put on over an asbestos mat. Stir frequently, but keep covered while cooking. When the juice is the consistency of thin custard, strain through a fine strainer and it is ready to use. This sauce may be used for meat, fish, macaroni or cheese. Dried mushrooms, soaked in warm water, may be added to the sauce and cooked in it until they are tender.

ANCHOVY SAUCE

5 medium-sized anchovies
½ cupful oil (olive)
½ teaspoonful black pepper
1 can tomatoes (No. 2)

Put the anchovies into a strainer and dip quickly into and out of hot water to loosen the skin. Skin and bone and chop fine. Put into a saucepan with the oil and pepper. Do not let the anchovies cook in the oil. Keep the oil hot and the fish tossed about. Put the canned tomatoes on the fire and cook and condense. When the consistency of soft custard, strain into the anchovies and oil and stir until well blended. This is an excellent sauce for macaroni. The anchovies used here are the salted variety and quite inexpensive.

SAUCE MILANAISE

3 tablespoonfuls olive oil
¼ pound salted anchovies
1 can tomatoes (No. 2)
1 large stalk dill
¼ teaspoonful black pepper
3 cloves of garlic

Cook the tomatoes until they are soft. Strain through a fine wire strainer. Chop the garlic very fine and brown in the oil. Add the strained tomatoes and the finely chopped dill. Remove the skin and bones from the anchovy and chop fine. Add to the first mixture. Season with pepper and cook until the dill and anchovies are tender. This should be a thin sauce, and if in the cooking it thickens up too much, add water. Keep covered while cooking. This is a spaghetti or rice sauce. When used with spaghetti, the cooked spaghetti should be sprinkled with browned bread crumbs and grated cheese first. Then pour on the sauce.

ANCHOVY DRESSING

2 salted anchovies
1 large spring parsley
½ small onion
1 clove garlic
Juice of ½ lemon
2 tablespoonfuls vinegar
¼ cup olive oil
Salt and black pepper.

Rub the bowl with the cut side of the garlic. Wash and skin the anchovies and rub to a paste in the bowl. Add the chopped parsley and onion and the vinegar and oil alternately until the vinegar and oil are used up, stir in the lemon juice; mix until smooth; add salt and pepper. Anchovy dressing may be used for meat or fish, and if it is to be used for a salad dressing for plain lettuce, more oil and vinegar will have to be used to make it thin enough to pour. Use one tablespoonful of oil for each one of vinegar when the dressing is being thinned.

NEAPOLITAN SAUCE

½ pound beef
¼ pound bacon
2 small onions
¼ teaspoonful black pepper
5 dried mushrooms
1 clove garlic
1 sprig parsley
1 can tomatoes (No. 2)

Grind the bacon and dry out in a pan, being careful not to crisp or burn it. Chop the onion and the garlic very fine and add to the bacon; cook gently, but do not brown. Add the chopped parsley and the meat cut into very small pieces. (Do not put through meat chopper.) Cut the soaked mushrooms into very fine pieces and add to the meat and other ingredients. Add the canned tomatoes and let simmer gently until all is well blended and the vegetables and meat thoroughly cooked. Before using thicken with ½ cup dried browned bread crumbs if the sauce shows a tendency to separate. The kettle should be tightly covered while the sauce is cooking.

BROWN SAUCE

¼ pound raw beef (lean)
5 slices bacon
2 cups hot water or stock
1 large stalk celery
½ small carrot
½ small onion
1 small clove garlic
2 tablespoonfuls flour
¼ teaspoonful pepper

Put the meat and vegetables through the meat chopper. Cut the bacon into small pieces, put in iron frying pan and let brown. Add the meat and vegetables and pepper. Stir constantly and brown without burning. Add one cup of liquid and continue cooking. Thicken the other cup of liquid with the flour and add to the sauce. Cook until thick and brown like brown gravy. Mushrooms may be added to this sauce. If they are used, they should be soaked in warm water and then put through the meat chopper with the meat and vegetables.

Cotton Market

In their weekly report on the cotton market, Messrs. A. B. Rosenfeld and Son write as follows:

China Cotton.—Fluctuations have again been very mild with practically no net change in the average price level during the week; there has, however, being a decided widening in the differences between old and new crop positions. The course of the market will continue to be governed chiefly by the progress of the crop. The critical month of August is still ahead of us, and the trade will naturally be kept in a state of nervousness not only from weather conditions but also from insects.

While the technical position of the market may offer opportunities for occasional scalping operations, the progress of the crop will continue to be the chief basis for important price changes.

Extracts of Correspondence

Kiangsu Province, July 24.—For the past 14 days cotton in this section has made good headway where rains have fallen. Will require perfect weather from now on to insure an average yield.

Chekiang Province, July 22.—The weather continues favorable for cotton here and the plant is fruiting rapidly. The outlook is for a full crop in this section.

Yangtsze Valley, July 20.—The weather throughout the Valley at present is entirely too hot and dry for the condition of the plant.

Shansi Province, July 15.—Crop in this territory is progressing in keeping with forcing weather we are having. During the past week we have been having extremely high temperatures. A week of wet weather will put the fields in first class conditions.

Honan Province, July 22.—During the week this section has had dry and hot weather and complaints are general of too much sunshine.

Chihli Province, July 22.—The weather for the past week has been ideal for the cotton crop.

Shantung Province, July 21.—The conditions for cotton have been favorable, the weather has been hot and occasional showers have been beneficial.

Yarn:—The yarn market was still lifeless during the week, and closes without change of consequence from the price level of last week. There is nothing to change our views regarding the trend of the market as outlined in our previous reports, considering that there are no reliable indications as yet that prices will strengthen before stocks are cleared.

SPUNT REPORT

Messrs. J. Spunt and Company write as follows in their report on the cotton market.

China Cotton:—Our market during the past week has shown in no way improvement in the trade and whatsoever little business that transpired was done at two to three mace per picul lower than that in the previous period, however, prices on the whole continue with a steady undertone.

Due to the persistent depression in the yarn trade a fair number of the Chinese Mills have temporarily stopped night work.

Considering the gradual declines now in progress in Mid-Americans at a time when so much uncertainty exists as to the ultimate yield of the new season crop the present growth of which, according to reports, is heavily infested with the boll weevil and pink worm pests, there is every likelihood of experiencing sharp reactions at any moment and any reaction of this nature would also affect the Indian Market which so far has remained in a fairly steady position.

Reports on the domestic new crop, with a few exceptions, are thus far gratifying and provided weather conditions, during the month of August, continue favorable, an average yield may be looked forward to for the season 1922-3. Tone of the market, Steady.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells, which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying power, are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and, only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them wilfully with narcotics. Castoria contains no narcotics if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"Your preparation known as Castoria I have used for years in children's complaints and I have found nothing better."
JOHN J. LEFFA, M. D., Cleveland, Ohio.

"I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."
A. F. PUHLER, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"For several years I recommended your Castoria and shall always continue to do so, as it has invariably produced beneficial results."
EDWIN F PARDEE, M. D., New York City.

"I have used your Castoria in our own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild, laxative effect and freedom from harm."
EDWARD PARDEE, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Your Castoria is a meritorious household remedy. It is purely vegetable and acts as a mild cathartic. Above all, it does no harm, which is more than can be said of the great majority of children's remedies."
VICTOR H. COTTAM, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a pure and reliable medicine for infants and children, in fact it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

Opposition To Wu's Demand For Fund

(Independent News Service)

Hankow, July 23.—General Wu Pei-fu is alleged to have ordered the Finance Commissioner of Wuchang to negotiate for a $500,000 loan from foreign bankers in Hankow. The loan will be used to pay the arrears of soldiers' rations in order to avoid the repetitions of outbreaks and mutinies and looting which have recently occurred among northern troops along the Peking-Hankow railway.

Proceedings are secretly in progress in the Associated Provincial Chambers of Commerce of Hupeh. After a general meeting in Hankow yesterday, they telegraphed to Peking protesting against the loan from foreign banks in Hankow.

Students In Japan Now On Half Pay

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, July 24.—The Chinese Charge d'Affaires in Tokio has wired the Peking Government asking for funds for the Chinese students in Japan. Twenty thousand dollars a month is the least that can be managed on and although this was promised, only $10,000 was received for July.

The other ten is requested as well as the entire amount for August. The bank account has been overdrawn and the money urgently needed.

French Newspapers Oppose Oil Claims Sought By America

Paris, July 5.—The nationalistic press is criticising severely the report of M. Laurent Eynac on the petroleum situation made after his return from Genoa, in which he urges that France support American claims and points out that the interests of the United States and France in petroleum concessions are identical.

Eynac is accused editorially of defending Standard Oil interests against Shell interests and playing an American game against England, a violation of French neutrality.

"If France declares war in Europe, as our born reactionaries dream," asks Gustave Tory, in Oeuvre, "can one seriously believe that the United States will nourish our airplanes, our tanks and our submarines with petroleum, the very United States that denounces our militarism as with a flail?"

And again: "The true French policy should consist in profiting by the rivalry of the Standard and the Shell and while there is yet time to assure to France, under the most advantageous conditions, that petroleum production which is not less indispensable in peace than in wartime."

Both Sides In South Are Now On Defensive

(Eastern News Agency)

Canton, July 27.—A Chinese military observer who has returned here from Wengyuan, makes the following statement.

"In the district of Shaokwan, both the troops under the command of General Chen Chiung-ming and the Sun Yat-sen forces are on the defensive. In the region of Wengyuan, skirmishes commenced on July 10 between the advanced-posts of the two contending armies, and on July 15 a large force of Dr. Sun's troops made a sudden attack upon General Chen Chiung-ming with the consequence that the troops Li Yun-fu, eight battalions in all, belonging to General Chen, suffered great losses, retreating to the district of Yingteh.

"Wengyuan, however, was recovered upon the arrival on July 17 of reinforcements under the command of Chung Ching-tang.

"Though the place fell in the hands of General Hsu Chung-chi's troops three times between the 18th and 20th instant, it has finally been captured by General Chen's troops through the assistance of the troops under General Hsiung Siao."

Advices from Kiangse state that the disposition of the Northern troops, now in Kiangse, is that the 1st Division is placed on the middle front, in the region south of Kianfu the troops under General Chen Hung-ying on the West front in the district of Yunghsinhsien, and the Honan troops on the East front in the district of Chinchi.

These troops, the advices add, are now engaging in battle with the Southern Sun Yat-sen forces.

The faction, belonging to General Chen Chiung-ming, is so hard pressed for the defrayment of military funds that it has decided to fight a decisive battle with the anti-Northern troops as soon as possible, as there is fear of its source of revenue being exhausted in two weeks.

As the result of the military council held on July 24, four battalions under General Hung Chao-lin and fourteen battalions under Hsiung Liao, Huang Shih-huan and Teng Pen-yin have been despatched to Yingteh under the commandership of General Hung Chao-lin.

Their object is reported to engage the anti-Northern troops in the district of Wengyuan.

According to a telegram from Amoy one brigade of the Fukien troops is advancing towards the district of Chaochow. In this connection Dr. Sun Yat-sen's faction alleges that the Fukien troops intend to subjugate General Chen, acting in co-operation with Dr. Sun Yat-sen, while General Chen's faction asserts that the object of the Fukien troops is to prevent General Hsu Chung-chi from escaping into Fukien. It is generally believed here that they are proceeding to defend the border of Fukien and to make precautionary preparations for the worst.

(Kuo Wen News Agency)

Canton, July 27.—Official news has been received here to the effect that Yintak fell into the hands of the Constitutional forces on Saturday. Gen. Chen Chiung-ming's forces are retreating.

The Yunnanese Constitutional troops have disarmed a large section of Col. Lo Shao-yun's forces who have surrendered.

The reports that Gen. Li Yun-fu has been killed are incorrect. Gen. Li has received a wound on the right arm.

FREIGHT RATES IN AMERICA CUT BY COMMISSION

Effort Being Made To Limit Returns To 5.75 Percent

Washington, July 3.—Railroad freight rates were reduced July 1 by amounts equal to 10 percent of their present levels under a decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission announced today.

Practically all classes and commodities of traffic are affected by the decision concluding the investigation began last autumn into the reasonableness of existing freight levels.

Agricultural products in all sections of the country outside of New England, live stock and Western grain and grain products are the chief commodities excluded from the reduction, these comprising the freight classifications recently reduced. Passenger charges and Pullman fares are left unchanged by the decision.

With its decision, the commission announces also its determination of 5.75 percent as the reasonable annual return which carriers in the future will be entitled to earn on their actual capital investment. This compares with 6 percent fixed under the Transportation Act for the period expiring March 1.

Railroads were required to signify to the commission before May 31 whether they would voluntarily make new schedules or require the commission to issue its detailed order for the alteration. The full weight of the commission appeared to be thrown behind the statement made in the majority and controlling opinion that "general reduction in the rate level as substantial as the condition of the carriers will permit will tend to stabilise the conditions under which commerce and industry are carried on, with consequent fuller assurance to carriers of realising a fair return."

On the statement of the commission that rail freight revenues in 1921 approximated $4,000,000,000 today's decision will reduce the national freight bill by $400,000,000 per year.

The commission said that after July 1 it would hold unreasonable rates "including more than the following percentages of increase over the rates in effect immediately prior to August 26, 1920," and set up the territorial schedules as follows:

"In the Eastern group, also between points in Illinois territory and between Illinois territory and the Eastern group, 25 percent instead of the 40 percent authorised in the decisions last cited (increased rates of 1920).

"In the Western group and between the Western group and Illinois territory, 21.5 percent instead of the 35 percent so authorised.

"In the Southern and Mountain Pacific groups, 12.5 percent instead of the 25 percent so autnorised.

"On inter-territorial traffic, except as otherwise provided herein, 20 percent instead of the 33 1-3 percent so authorised."

Commissioner Potter, in a concurring decision, pointed out that the percentage reductions so defined are "in effect a requirement that present rates and charges shall, generally speaking, be reduced 10 percent."

The commission declared that as rates had been pushed up by horizontal percentage increases "a similar process should be followed" in bringing them down to meet lowered expenses of operation."

This coincides with the argument.
